

Date on which you may be enrolled at the study site: 04/20/2020 – 04/24/2020

The San Diego Epidemiology and Research for COVID-19 Health (SEARCH) Study is a project undertaken by a collaboration of Rady Children’s Hospital, Rady Children’s Institute for Genomic Medicine, UCSD and Scripps Research Institute. The study seeks to understand the spread and extent of COVID-19 in San Diego among healthcare workers.

Participation in this study is entirely voluntary and for initial enrollment requires you to provide this flyer provided to you at your place of work. Enrollment may be limited on a given day so presentation of flyer with appropriate date of enrollment is required.

You may participate at a local study site – information on study site attached

Answers to Frequently asked Questions:

1. Is participating in this study the same as receiving a clinical test for COVID-19?

No - Participation in this study does not provide a clinical test. If you would like to obtain clinical testing you should reach out to your physician.

2. Will participants be told about their study findings?

Maybe - You may not receive results if:

- ⇒ the virus was not found in your sample
- ⇒ your sample was not analyzed until a later date

The study team or the health department may reach out to you through the contact information you provide in order to share research findings.

3. Will this help with the current outbreak of COVID-19

Maybe – In an attempt to better understand how the disease is spread in the health care community, our research findings may help guide public health policy and inform decision-making.

4. Is participation in this research study voluntary?

Yes - Participation is voluntary. You can withdraw at any time by contacting the study team.
